

AI GOVERNANCE OFFICER

Fractional AI leadership

Setting the precedents that empower self-sufficiency in AI governance.

While many businesses have established AI working groups spanning legal, compliance, data and IT, AI's multidisciplinary nature and a scarcity of true expertise mean organisations struggle to locate ownership.

The result is uneven governance and AI adopted tactically within teams instead of strategically across the enterprise, producing isolated wins but little organisation-wide value.

This inconsistency can make governance feel obstructive rather than enabling. As confidence falls, workarounds appear and the gap between innovation and oversight widens.

How we help

Our fractional AI Governance Officer (AGO) service provides interim leadership for your multidisciplinary teams and establishes clear and centralised ownership of AI risk, without the cost or rigidity of a full-time executive hire.

We embed commercially focused AI governance best practice, defining how cross-functional working groups should be coordinated and how AI use cases should be evaluated and approved, with the clear goal of transitioning governance ownership back to your teams once the structures, standards and leadership precedents have been firmly established.

Create a bespoke package of support, including:

- support the design and operation of AI governance frameworks
- deliver and maintain foundational tools to facilitate governance of AI risks
- chair AI steering committees and governance forums
- provide independent assessment of new AI use cases
- deliver executive and workforce training; drive awareness and horizon scanning
- embed responsible AI policies across business functions
- provide regular updates to management and senior stakeholders.

Core benefits

Holistic expertise

Our experts combine legal, data and IT knowledge to offer a single point of multidisciplinary support for all AI issues, centralising guidance and removing the burden of synthesising inputs internally.

Proactivity

For many organisations, the challenge isn't answering questions but knowing which ones to ask. We take time to understand your business, proactively identify risk and guide you toward your strategic objectives.

Dial up, down or off

CFOs increasingly value flexible, low-commitment operating models. Our subscription can scale up, scale down or pause entirely, offering more agility than fixed resourcing.

Commercially-grounded expertise

With deep in-house experience, our team recognises that eliminating AI risk entirely isn't realistic. We focus on what matters: pragmatic solutions that balance risk with commercial ambition.

Leading the charge, or supporting behind the scenes

Our service is flexible: we can act as your appointed AGO, support an internal AGO discreetly, or provide targeted counsel as needed.

Frictionless support

External support often feels slow or costly, leading teams to delay quick queries and inadvertently carry issues forward. Our model removes that friction, reducing downstream remediation and encouraging right-first-time delivery.
